Are you and your family safe from violence?

Violence is any behaviour used to injure, abuse or harm another individual. Women of all cultures experience violence and abuse, but Aboriginal women and girls are at higher risk of violence.

Violence is never acceptable. Aboriginal women and their families have the legal right to be safe and to live free from violence, abuse and threats. Physical and sexual violence (including rape) are crimes and are against the law.

The information in this brochure can help you to recognize actions based on power and control. These are considered violent behaviours. Non-violent behaviours are respectful and promote equality.

You are not alone. There are options that can help you to build a more positive environment for you and your family.

Programs and services in communities across British Columbia can offer you support. Services like transition houses, safe homes and counselling programs are there for all women in B.C., including Aboriginal, First Nations, Métis and Inuit women.

Some services focus specifically on Aboriginal women and families, including residential school healing programs and specialized counselling, addiction support and educational services. Phone numbers you can call are listed on the back of this brochure.

Behaviours Based On Power and Control

Using Coercion and Threats

- Making and/or carrying out threats to do something to hurt her
- Threatening to leave her, to commit suicide, to report her to welfare
- Making her drop charges
- Making her do illegal things

Using Intimidation

- Making her afraid by using looks, actions, gestures
- Smashing things
- Destroying her property
- Abusing pets
- Displaying weapons

Using Emotional Abuse

- Putting her down
- Making her feel bad about herself
- Calling her names
- Making her think she's crazy
- Playing mind games
- Humiliating her
- Making her feel guilty

Using Isolation

- Controlling what she does, who she sees and talks to, what she reads, where she goes
- Limiting her outside involvement
- Using jealousy to justify actions

Behaviours Based On Power and Control

Minimizing, Denying and Blaming

- Making light of the abuse and not taking her concerns about it seriously
- Saying the abuse didn't happen
- Shifting responsibility for abusive behaviour
- Saying she caused it

Using Children

- Making her feel guilty about the children
- Using the children to relay messages
- Using visitation to harass her
- Threatening to take the children away

Using Male Privilege

- Treating her like a servant
- Making all the big decisions
- Acting like the "master of the castle"
- Being the one to define men's and women's roles

Using Economic Abuse

- Preventing her from getting or keeping a job
- Making her ask for money
- Giving her an allowance
- Taking her money
- Not letting her know about or have access to family income

"The negative effects of behaviour go from generation to generation in a vicious circle. Through understanding and healing we can break it."

Behaviours That Promote Equality

Negotiation and Fairness

- Seeking mutually satisfying resolutions to conflict
- Accepting change
- Being willing to compromise

Non-Threatening Behaviour

- Talking and acting so that she feels safe and comfortable expressing herself and doing things

Respect

- Listening to her non-judgmentally
- Being emotionally affirming and understanding
- Valuing opinions

Trust and Support

- Supporting her goals in life
- Respecting her right to her own feelings, friends, activities and opinions

“I was unable to recognize that I was in an abusive relationship. When a doctor told me that I needed to go to a battered women’s support group, I was offended. I didn’t like being labeled, especially since I was First Nations. It made me feel ashamed. It took some time for me to get the help I needed. When I did, it was one of the best things I did for myself.”

Behaviours That Promote Equality

Honesty and Accountability

- Accepting responsibility for self
- Acknowledging past use of violence
- Admitting being wrong
- Communicating openly and truthfully

Responsible Parenting

- Sharing parental responsibilities
- Being a positive non-violent role model for the children

Shared Responsibility

- Mutually agreeing on a fair distribution of work
- Making family decisions together

Economic Partnership

- Making money decisions together
- Making sure both partners benefit from financial arrangements

“Balance is imperative! If I knew I was going to live so long I would have looked after myself better.”
